

University Ministries

Have you ever felt a burden on your heart for the future leaders and missionaries of Christ's Church around the globe? The Lord may be calling you to work with University students in Montevideo, Uruguay!

The time when most students attend university is one of the most critical times in their lives—where they are making decisions about who they will marry, what they will do for a living, and how they will live their lives.

What better time to reach them with the Good News of the gospel of Jesus Christ?

The SIM team in Uruguay needs creative, motivated people to work with the young people, across denominational lines, and to evangelize and disciple the next generation. This could be done in a variety of ways—from building relationships through coffee shop ministries to small cell group Bible studies. The opportunities are endless!

Each position has an internship period where missionaries are assigned a mentor in an established ministry, such as Campus Crusade for Christ or InterVarsity.

After a time of acclimating to the culture and language acquisition, each candidate will develop a proposal for a ministry and have it approved by the team leader, or will decide to remain in the ministry of their choice. If you have experience leading or participating in groups like these, you may be just who the Lord is calling to this field.
